

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0035] Methods and systems for reducing crosstalk during continuous wave ultrasound data acquisition are provided. A conductive layer electrically shields groups of transmit conductors from groups of receive conductors to reduce noise susceptibility. Mutual coupling during continuous wave Doppler imaging is avoided by providing a shield between or around different groups of conductors. A shielded cable is provided within another cable.